LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Volume 15

I can't get Alberto Rojas's ghostly, white-hot woman with blood red hair that graces this month's cover of FUSE out of my head. She's demure and hot, background and foreground, sweet and aggressive, Saint and evil, alluring and creepy all the same time.

She reminds me of a woman in white that often appear in Hawaiian, Mexican, and the United States legends. A woman in white is a type of a supernatural creature who commonly kidnaps men, after suffering from broken heart and committing suicide when alive.

When they were alive, they all were beautiful and had children and, when they suffered after being deceived by the men they loved, they drowned them. Then, they commit suicide and, subsequently, they spend the rest of eternity looking for their children, crying and suffering, until they find them. They roam in rivers and roads, and when they find a man who cheats, they kill them, and the men are never seen again.

This issue of FUSE is full of numerous other hot, thoughtful works by other talented artist, photographers, and models that will leave a lasting impression and enrich your life. They will impress your eyes and tickle your mind, all in a good, very enjoyable way.

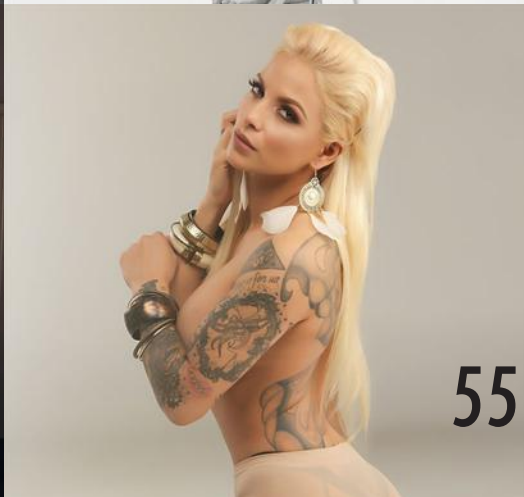

XOXO

Emily Abiyeva is an American born model of Hispanic and European decent. She's been modeling for two years now and since then has been busy shooting for various magazines, music videos and TV pilots. Emily has experience on the runway and has modeled for several clothing companies. She aspires to be successful in the world of reality TV as a correspondent or a TV personality. Although her real passion is fitness, she's loves food way too much to be a fitness-model. Growing up she was always into boxing and by the age of 19 she took up Muay Thai. Being so interested in the sport her real dream was to fight professionally at atom weight. But with a love for being in front of the camera she's going to stick to what she does best and continue inspiring people with a mix of her sexy and creative art.

RAQUEL RISCHARD

Instagram sensation Raquel Rischard is a glamour model and photographer who took her inspiration from such 1940s and 1950s actresses such as Bridget Bardot, Raquel Welch, Ava Gardner, and Marilyn Monroe.

Raquel is fortunate to have her photos appear in magazines the likes of Esquire, FHM, Playboy, and Maxim. In 2004, she was chosen to be Playboy's 50th-anniversary lingerie cover model. She would go on star on an E! Entertainment German reality series following her career. Raquel has modeled print work for Clairol, Beebe, and Fredrick's of Hollywood.

She is an internationally recognized photographer who has worked with Guess Jeans and Playboy.

You can follow Raquel on Instagram and Twitter (@RaquelRischard). You can find her modeling photos on raquelrischard.com and her photography on rischardphoto.com.
