Death in Paradise

THURSDAY / BBC1

Yet again at the gloomiest time of year, this sparky Caribbean-based series is setting me dreaming of holidays in the sun. As the detectives probe the death of a catwalk model, French actress Joséphine Jobert, sidekick to Humphrey Goodman (Kris Marshall), talks to us about acting in English, stocking her wardrobe with shorts and getting recognised in Iceland – the country, not the frozen food store! See page 16.

Michelle takes the plunge as Letty, alongside co-star Juan Diego Botto

Stars get to work on new shows following finale

Here's Downton Abbey's Michelle Dockery sporting a neckline that would make Lady Mary blush in the first snap released from her new US drama Good Behaviour.

The 34-year-old stars in the 10-part 'seductive thriller' as Letty, a newly released prisoner whose life is thrown in turmoil when she overhears a hitman contracted to kill the wife of a wealthy lawyer.

Letty goes from degenerative thief to unlikely heroine as she decides to stop the assassin in the TNT series, based on the Letty Dobesh books by Blake Crouch.

And, following the end of ITV's megahit upstairs-downstairs saga, Michelle isn't the only big name from the show working on new TV projects and films. Here's what some of her former castmates are up to... DAVID HOLLINGSWORTH

Life after Downton

WHAT'S NEXT FOR THE CAST...

JOANNE FROGGATT

After playing kindly lady's maid Anna, Joanne is turning evil as real-life Victorian serial killer Mary Ann Cotton in ITV's two-part Dark Angel. 'It's a fascinating tale and a fascinating study of why this woman becomes what she becomes,' she says.

HUGH BONNEVILLE

When he wasn't spitting blood at the dinner table, Hugh's Lord Grantham always looked pristine. However, the actor was decidedly dishevelled when he filmed a guest role in US musical-comedy Galavant. He sported dreadlocks and a ragged hat to play a pirate king. Sophie McShera (kitchen maid Daisy) also won a part in the spoof.

PENELOPE WILTON

Penelope always had a regal air as Isobel Crawley, so it's fitting that she's voicing the Queen of England in the big-screen adaptation of Roald Dahl's classic children's story

The BFG. Directed by Steven Spielberg, the film is due out this summer.

SAMANTHA BOND

As Lady Rosamund, Samantha spent most of her time trying to cheer up Lady Edith. The acclaimed actress is sticking to period drama by starring in a second series of ITV's

World War Two saga Home Fires. Scheduled for later this year, the six-part will see Cheshire's fictional Great Paxford Women's Institute caught up in 1940's Battle of Britain.

BRENDAN COYLE

After playing valet John Bates, Brendan is moving up in the world to depict top British politician Augustine Birrell in the Irish historical thriller, The Rising: 1916. Due for release in March, the film also stars Merlin and The Fall's Colin Morgan.

LAURA CARMICHAEL

Having finally found joy as Lady Edith, Laura will again play the female lead's sister in upcoming film A United Kingdom. It tells the true story of a future African king (David Oyelowo) who falls in love with a white woman (Rosamund Pike). She's also co-starring with Anna Friel in ITV crime drama Marcella, from the writer of The Bridge.

Bake Off is the most watched show of 2015

The final of The Great British Bake Off was 2015's most watched show, with 15.05 million viewers tuning in to see Nadiya Hussain crowned winner.

Britain's Got Talent took a distant second place, with 12.75 million viewers watching Jules and Matisse emerge victorious. Strictly was third, with 11.93 million.

The February episode revealing the last moments of Lucy Beale's life made EastEnders fourth, pulling in 11.57 million viewers.

I'm a Celebrity claimed fifth spot, with 11.33 million, while in sixth place was November's closing episode of

Downton's final series, with 10.9 million. Downton was also the most watched show over the festive period, with 10.5 million tuning in – including catch-up viewers. Sherlock's

The Abominable Bride, shown on New Year's Day, did well, too, with 8.4 million. This will, no doubt, rise when catch-up figures are added later.

Now and then: Mulder and Scully today and in 1993

The revival is out there

C5 to screen Mulder and Scully's dramatic return

► Fans of The X-Files are finally getting a new series after C5 won a bidding war to screen it in the UK. David Duchovny and Gillian Anderson will reprise their iconic roles as FBI agents Fox Mulder and Dana Scully, last seen on our TV screens back in 2002. 'There's a particular kind of enthusiasm people have for this coming back,' says 47-year-old Gillian, who's currently filming the third and final series of BBC2's The Fall.

Five things you'll want to know about the reopened X-Files (Warning: contains spoilers!)

When can I watch it? C5 will show the six-part series shortly after it opens in America on 24 January. So, early February seems the most likely start date...

What's it about? The opening episode, called My Struggle, features a huge UFO crash and a young woman who's been abducted by aliens so many times, she's lost count!

What's going on between Mulder and Scully? The new series focuses on the child the pair mysteriously had together. 'As parents we made a difficult sacrifice to keep him safe by putting him up for adoption,' Scully explains in the revival. Who's back? Mulder and Scully's arch nemesis The Smoking Man is returning, along with their old boss Walter Skinner and conspiracy theorists The Lone Gunmen.

What about that theme tune? The music and opening credits are exactly as they were in 1993.

Dark side of the Sixties

The stars of Call the Midwife on the heartbreak in store as they return with a real-life medical scandal...

NEW DRAMA

Call the Midwife

SUNDAY / BBC1 / 8.00PM

Call the Midwife is frequently hailed as life-affirming television, but as we all know, that doesn't mean that the BBC1 period drama steers clear of hard-hitting issues.

Now, as the fifth series gets underway, the residents of Nonnatus House in Poplar, east London, are about to face one of their most traumatic cases to date.

In the last series, an unwitting Dr Turner (Stephen McGann) and wife Shelagh (Laura Main) were seen prescribing a new drug, thalidomide, to help women deal with morning sickness.

As the new run begins, a baby has been born without thumbs and then another mother, Rhoda Mullucks (Life on Mars and Our Zoo star Liz White), gives birth to a little girl without limbs.

The Turners are stunned but also bewildered, unaware that the 'wonder drug' is to blame.

Thalidomide became the subject of a real-life global scandal when thousands of babies across the globe were born with deformities.

When the link was discovered in 1961 – the year in which the new series is set – the drug was withdrawn in the UK.

The immediate issue for the TV midwives is how to treat Rhoda's baby and even whether to help the infant survive or allow her to die. 'At this point, we don't know why the baby is born without limbs and if, or when, they will piece it all together,' Laura Main, 34, tells TV Times as we catch up on the show's set.

'Shelagh is in the birthing room and her instinct is to keep the baby alive, although later she actually queries that instinct.'

For all of the actors involved, the plot – which will resurface later in the series – has been difficult to film, but they felt the drama was right to tackle it.

'It's a hard, upsetting storyline but it's really important,' says Laura.

'With all the stories, you just want to do them justice, do them well and raise awareness. It's a tragic tale that I don't think has been shown on TV before, either, so I'm proud that it will be told.'

'As an actor you do think, "Oh no, does this make the Turners the bad guys?" but they were just trying to help. They prescribed the drug with good intentions.

'The producers and Heidi Thomas [the show's writer] did lots of research and spoke to several people who were affected and they didn't blame the doctors.'

2015 Strictly star Helen George, 31, who plays midwife Trixie Franklin, is full of admiration for the meticulous work that has gone on behind the scenes to portray the disaster accurately.

'It's so great that they're doing this. It's something that I knew about but not in any detail,' she says.

'The make-up department has got lots of photos around and they're also having new prosthetic babies made because it's so hard to show properly on screen.'

As if this dark episode in pharmaceutical history isn't enough, the nuns and midwives also have to cope with an outbreak of typhoid, an increase in lung cancer cases, a mother who vanishes and a teenage pregnancy.

'I think people realise now that it's not a cosy Sunday-night drama,' says Laura. 'Yes, it is warm and there is always hope – it's not just bleak. However, we don't shy away from life and we show how it can be a rollercoaster. Viewers respond to the fact there are really serious storylines, but also laughter; it's a great combination.'

That light relief partly comes from recovering alcoholic Trixie.

The last run saw the well-spoken midwife in crisis as she battled with drinking and also broke up with her fiancé, local vicar Tom Hereward (Jack Ashton). Now she's going to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings and has also found a passion for keeping fit.

'She's sorting herself out,' explains Helen. 'I've known people who have struggled with addictions and, when they're healing, they need something else to focus on, so health and exercise have taken on a strong role in her life.

Exercise helps Trixie exorcise her demons

'Trixie has joined a keep-fit club and decides to become an instructor and start her own club. She drags all the girls along as she's worried no one else will be there!

'The story allows us to look at issues surrounding the female form, as there's an older lady in her class who doesn't understand her own body and Trixie is all about owning your own body,' says Helen, who admits there's one big sartorial drawback to the scenario.

'By and large, Trixie will probably spend most of this series in a woolly leotard with a saggy bottom!'

There are, in fact, costume changes aplenty as, to the chagrin of Sister Evangelina (Pam Ferris) but the delight of the nurses, they take delivery of some snazzy new uniforms in the opening episode.

'They're amazing,' enthuses Helen. 'We're so happy with them as they feel quite feminine – they come in at the waist and then flare out. We've even got a cape, which we've been pushing for, so we've got rid of the grey macs. Suddenly I've got this image of us as superheroes with capes flowing in the wind!'

New year, new look, new love

Corrie star Debbie Rush gives us the inside story of Anna Windass's transformation from downtrodden mum to fabulous fortysomething

SOAP Coronation Street

MON, WED, FRI / ITV /
7.00PM, 7.30PM, 8.30PM

There was a time when we thought Corrie's Anna Windass might need the tea towel that's usually draped over her shoulder surgically removed. It was a permanent fixture for her, along with the furrowed brow and permanent scowl.

How things have changed, as a new-look Anna has emerged – she has taken to dressing up for hot dates with Kevin Webster and snogging the whiskers off him.

We didn't see that coming and neither did Debbie Rush, 49, who plays the hard-working mum.

'I don't know where it's come from,' she confesses. 'But the writers obviously saw something and I always trust them. I think Anna had reached a point where she was ready to get her glad rags on, and there's a lot of potential in getting her and Kevin connected with Sally and Tim.'

Debbie is loving Anna's new look, although she tells us she feels exposed in some of her more figure-hugging outfits.

'I used to be able to hide behind her big cardies. Now you can see what I really look like!'

'Anna has been dowdy and down for too long. All women get dressed up from time to time, no matter who they are, where they work or how many children they have, and I think this new portrayal of her is a little more honest.

'Anna did get a little more dressed up when she was first with Owen. She's the type of woman who makes an effort when there's a new man in her life, but then slips back because she's working too hard.

'Her style is a little bit Lorraine Kelly and Loose Women, because those are the people she admires on the TV. The trouble is, Anna never gets it quite right.'

We think the new, glam Anna is a foxy minx – and clearly

Kevin agrees. The smitten garage owner feels so loved up that he decides it's time for them to go public about their relationship.

'Anna's nervous about Sally finding out and there are a few Benny Hill moments, which I hope the audience find funny,' reveals Debbie.

Viewers still ask Anna about Owen (who was played by Beowulf star Ian Puleston-Davies – see feature, page 17), and whether he's coming back. Debbie explains that Owen was, and still is, the love of Anna's life.

'I don't think she's over him. She was madly in love, but they just kept getting it wrong all the time. I don't know what's going to happen to Anna in the future, but as long as I'm getting quality drama to do, I'm happy.

'Ian and I didn't join Corrie together and when he left I just carried on the way

I always do, and waited for what they'd give me to do next.'

Was she nervous about canoodling with a new co-star?

'Oh no, I've kissed loads of men – in the course of my work!' she laughs. 'I hadn't actually worked with Michael Le Vell [who plays Kevin] before, but we knew each other and he's great to work with.

'There are times in this job where you have to kiss somebody you met 10 minutes ago. I don't mind it at all, but if you asked me to strip off, I might give you a different answer. Thankfully, we're on before the watershed, so there's none of that.'

Although Anna is all smiles now, there's a dark cloud on the horizon, as there always is in soap. Builder Pat Phelan (Connor McIntyre), who blackmailed her into sleeping with him last year, turns up this week as one of Kevin's new labourers, so it's easy to guess where her next helping of grief might be coming from.

'As far as Anna's concerned, what happened between her and Phelan was consensual rape and he could threaten everything all over again, just when she's finally got her life right. It's a different story for me, though. Honest to God, I was absolutely thrilled when I heard he was coming back. I knew there would be repercussions for Anna, and that's really exciting.

'As you've probably guessed, I love my job.

I thrive off the big stories and I have some very heavy scenes coming up, so I've been spending my weekends learning lines. But, at the end of the day, what matters most is my family.'

Debbie, whose 24-year-old daughter Poppy recently appeared in EastEnders as Kyle's friend Sophie, reveals that she's nothing like Anna.

'We're poles apart. Although, and I hate to say this, I'm a bit of a domestic goddess like her. I'm a good cook and I'm very tidy everywhere – apart from the wardrobes. And if anybody from my family dares to disagree, they'll be sorry!'

A run of

James Nesbitt on playing the most fortunate man on Earth, and his own big career breaks

lucky

NEW CRIME DRAMA

Stan Lee's Lucky Man

FRIDAY / SKY1 / 9.00PM

James Nesbitt is the first to admit that, in terms of his acting career, he's led something of a charmed life.

Since getting his breakthrough in Cold Feet in the late 1990s – a role he'll return to later this year as the hit ITV comedy-drama makes its comeback – the Northern Irish actor has built an impressive CV, most recently in the gripping BBC1 child abduction drama The Missing, and as dwarf Bofur in Peter Jackson's Hobbit film franchise.

'I'm someone who works hard, but it would be impossible for me not to acknowledge that I've been incredibly lucky,' says the 51-year-old father of two, who this week stars in Sky1's Stan Lee's Lucky Man as a detective who suddenly acquires the gift of good fortune.

'Often luck is about being in the right place at the right time, or chancing upon something that leads to something else, but it's crucial for any actor.'

'I went to drama school and we were considered to be a very good year. But of the 28 who graduated, I think only four of us are working regularly: myself, Jason Isaacs [Harry Potter], James Purefoy [star of Sky Atlantic's The Following], Jared Harris [Mad Men] – and that's it. The rest have either given up or are doing very little.'

In recent years James, whose other TV hits include Monroe and Murphy's Law, has been busier than ever. In Lucky Man, Marvel comics legend Stan Lee's first original drama for British television, he plays a troubled London cop. Harry Clayton's gambling addiction has led to the break-up of his marriage to barrister Anna (Nurse Jackie's Eve Best), with whom he has a young daughter, and is adversely affecting his job.

But after hooking up with the exotic Eve (Sienna Guillory, star of the Resident Evil movies), whom he meets on one of his regular late-night casino visits, Harry enjoys a change of fortune, on and off the roulette table.

Could this sudden run of good luck be connected to the antique bracelet he wakes up to find immovably attached to his wrist after his one-night stand? And will this lucky charm help extricate him from a murder case involving a casino owner who called in Harry's debt before being found dead?

'We're making a contemporary thriller and throwing in this magical element,' explains James. 'Harry's a maverick who's committed to his job but lives in a maelstrom of his own making. Why has he been chosen to be the bearer of the bracelet? I think it's because he's someone who, like every superhero, has good at his core, despite his flaws.'

Those flaws don't help Harry's fractious relationships with new boss DS Winter (Inside Men's Steven Mackintosh) and antagonistic colleague DI Orwell (Fortitude's Darren Boyd). However, he has at least one ally in his talented protégée DS Suri Chohan (Amara Karan).

As well as charting Harry's reaction to his now apparently charmed life and his attempts to find out about the bracelet, the 10-part drama also follows the progress of the police investigation into the death of the casino boss and a pole dancer employed by a seedy strip club owner (Omid Djalili).

If James could pick a superpower, what would it be?

'Well, my favourite superhero was George Best!' laughs the avid Manchester United fan. 'But I always liked the idea of being able to fly and, when I was in my teens, of being invisible. If I had a magic bracelet, I'd probably sell it. I'm a Northern Irish Presbyterian and we don't really go in for jewellery.'

Although it would be easy, especially for a gambling addict, to abuse the power of guaranteed good luck, James sees Harry's new-found ability as offering him a chance to mend his broken life.

'As the story gathers pace, Harry begins to realise that there might be redemption in it for him. Redemption as a policeman – in terms of what he can achieve with this wave of crime sweeping the city, which seems to be connected to the very dark underbelly of London – and as a human being. It's a journey he's taken on, although ultimately it puts him and his loved ones at great risk.

'It's nice to play flawed individuals, and it's easier for me to locate them. A hero who's flawed is much more interesting, and there's something appealing about Harry's addiction and also his weariness. You want to create a fine line where it shouldn't be easy to love him.'

Shot on location in London, Lucky Man features many of the capital's landmarks. This week's opener includes a dramatic chase along the River Thames.

'I was driving a speedboat through the Thames Barrier at 3.00am!' laughs James, who has confirmed that he will not appear in the second series of The Missing. 'I think that's the closest I'll get to playing James Bond. We're presenting London in a way we haven't necessarily seen it before – like Gotham in a sense, but our city, with these landmarks we know. To see them in such a dynamic, dark and brilliant way was something that hugely appealed.'

Appropriately in a show that's all about luck, James was pleasantly surprised to discover a remarkable coincidence in the casting of Harry's half-brother, Rich, an antiques dealer he consults about his bracelet.

'Years ago, when I was doing Murphy's Law, I offered the prize of a day on set with me for a charity fund-raiser. The person who won it was a young lad from Northern Ireland called Stephen Hagan, who was interested in acting. He spent the day with me on set – and now here he is playing my half-brother in this. It's a nice touch!'

Host Dermot O'Leary tells us what he's learned from presenting Britain's biggest TV awards show

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

The National Television Awards

WEDNESDAY / ITV / 7.30PM

Dermot O'Leary is on fine form when TV Times meets the chirpy presenter to chat about this year's National Television Awards on ITV.

This will be the seventh time he has hosted the event, which is celebrating its 21st year, but what has got him so excited this time?

'Because, for once, I'm not going to lose out to Ant & Dec,' grins Dermot, 42, who's been nominated for a Best Entertainment Presenter gong five times – and always lost out to the Geordie duo, who have won the prize a record 14 times. 'I'm not up for an award this year, as I haven't done as much telly, so at least I can't lose to them again. I'll be devastated if they don't win this year, the one time I'm not in the category!'

Dermot quit the The X Factor last March after eight happy years presenting the ITV juggernaut. Since then he's been busy with his award-winning Radio 2 music show and is now refereeing competing couples in BBC1's new Saturday-night series The Getaway Car (see feature, page 15).

'I'm really enjoying it, but I also love the unpredictability of live TV, especially a show like the NTAs, where anything can happen.'

Here, Dermot reveals the lessons he's learned from hosting Britain's biggest viewer-voted TV awards show.

1 Travel by boat

The celebrities always arrive late, because they travel by car and get stuck in traffic – it drives me up the wall! We have this enormous river in London that people aren't entirely sure what to do with but, trust me, it's the best way to get to the venue, the O2! Not only is it picturesque, it will also get you there on time. Nothing makes me more nervous than looking out at the auditorium five minutes before we're due to go on air and seeing it's only half full because the stars are running late.

2 Chucking a load of famous people together works

There isn't the diva behaviour you might expect at a big TV event like this. The NTAs are always very warm-hearted – when the stars eventually arrive. It's definitely a luvvie-fest and there's a lot of 'mwah-mwah-ing' going on, but it's actually a lovely thing to see famous actors, presenters and comedians hooking up with people they may have worked with ages ago and haven't seen for a while. There's a lot of love in that room – which is just as well because it's a long old show to sit through, and a beast of a show to record.

3 Nerves are good

People always ask me, 'Don't you get nervous presenting a huge, live show, looking out at all those famous faces?' Yes, of course, I have butterflies, but that gets the adrenaline pumping and if you've done all your preparation beforehand you can deal with anything. My first producer, Andi Peters, gave me great advice. He said, 'Know where you've come from and where you're going and just have fun with the bit in between.' So that's what I do.

4 Always plan a good after-show party

If famous people are coming, you must look after them – you want to put on a good spread. We don't skimp on money at the NTAs and give them plenty of alcohol! Quite a lot of fun happens at the after-show party but I have the least amount. By the time I turn up – stone-cold sober and exhausted – none of the stars are talking any sense.

5 Look sharp, feel sharp

You absolutely need to plan what to wear for an occasion like this. What TV in general has taught me is that you need a telly version of an outfit you like wearing. You want to feel utterly comfortable in your own skin, and for me that means suits – I love feeling smart. I get less opportunity to wear suits since leaving The X Factor and I do miss them, so it'll

Trying to get a word in with Mrs Brown's Boys star Brendan O'Carroll last year

He was always a hit as the host on The X Factor

6 Don't ever bet against Ant & Dec winning

They win every time and do you know why? Because they're really, really good. If I'd lost out to rubbish people every year I'd be devastated, but as it's to the two best presenters of our generation, I don't feel bad at all. Those guys aside, the NTAs can be unpredictable, so don't bet against the outsider. You'll always have staples like Corrie and EastEnders getting the votes, but sometimes there's a groundswell of public support that no one sees coming. The Inbetweeners was a small show on E4 but it resonated with its fans and got a shock win. Brilliant. That's why the NTAs are 21 years old – this country loves a voting show and having a voice. It's going to be a great night.

7 I can change hats

One of the reasons I left The X Factor was because I wanted to do more than one show, and I've found that in The Getaway Car. I'm enjoying myself. We've gone through a period where people in TV were stereotyped and only allowed to do one thing. Viewers allow us to change hats and it's great to have a gear change – just as it's great to host one of TV's biggest nights, the NTAs.

Dermot's in pole position as The Stig helps him drive The Getaway Car

Life in the fast lane

Dermot O'Leary tells us why he's wheely happy about his new car-based Saturday-night game show...

NEW GAME SHOW

The Getaway Car

SATURDAY / BBC1 / 6.50PM

You'd think The X Factor might be a sticky subject for its former host Dermot O'Leary.

But when we meet him, the ever-charming presenter's first words are to ask us if we saw the final.

'I loved watching Adele on there. She's always been such a fan of the show,' he says. 'It felt a bit odd watching it at home but it also felt nice to go to the fridge, get a drink and not feel any stress whatsoever.'

'I went out for dinner one weekend and I posted a picture on Instagram of my steak and red wine with a caption, "My Saturday night starts here!"', he says, referring to his famous X Factor catchphrase.

His replacements, Caroline Flack and Olly Murs, haven't always had the warmest reception from fans, and many took to social media to demand Dermot's reinstatement. He just smiles at the thought.

'It is nice to be missed but it's a double-edged sword because my mates are still working on the show and I want them to do well.'

'As for Olly's "mistake" in announcing the results one week – the amount of times I've done something like that! Live television can be very complicated.'

Relaxed and happy, Dermot, 42, gets into gear when he chats to us about his new BBC1 game show The Getaway Car, featuring racing, quizzing and Top Gear's The Stig.

'It's Total Wipeout for couples, behind the wheel of a car, mixed with Gogglebox. There are five rounds and the winning team gets to race The Stig – with a 10-second head start – to win £10,000.'

While the series, which was filmed in South Africa, puts contestants' driving skills to the test, its appeal lies in watching couples (as well as teams of friends or family) putting their relationships under strain.

'People are more at ease with themselves in a car than they would be in front of 20 cameras, and the way people speak to each other behind the wheel is extraordinary!' laughs Dermot. 'We're billing it as the ultimate relationship road test and it's been a hoot to film – it's been great working on a show that doesn't take itself too seriously.'

How does Dermot think he and his wife Dee, 37, would fare?

'It depends on who's driving. Parts of it would be a disaster but I'd like to think the communication would be OK. Saying that, we've had people who have been married for 30 years, then you hear the wife shouting, "You stupid old man!"'

Ultimately, says Dermot, it comes down to teamwork.

'If you want to win this show, you have to be a half-decent driver, you've got to work well as a team, and you can't be offended by what the person you love most in the world might say to you.'

Going with the Flo: Joséphine is happy just to catch criminals

CRIME DRAMA Death in Paradise

THURSDAY / BBC1 / 9.00PM

Most of us Brits can handle 'bonjour', 'merci' and perhaps even 'fromage' on a trip to France. But Parisian actress Joséphine Jobert, who plays Florence Cassell in hit BBC1 primetime caper Death in Paradise, has something a bit more sérieux on her plate...

'This is my first time acting in English and it's really difficult,' she admits. 'It's every French actor's dream to get an English-speaking role. My friends all tell me how lucky I am, but I was used to American phrases.

Now I've learned the difference between pants and trousers, and that 'frock' means dress!

'Kris Marshall [who plays bumbling Brit detective Humphrey Goodman] helps me out if I don't know how to pronounce something.'

Giving her first English interview to TVTimes in her trailer on set, Joséphine, 30, who joined the series last year, admits she feared taking over from popular

Starting out in uniform with Humphrey

Every single series or movie you're in wants you to have a love story

long-term lead actress Sara Martins, who had played DS Camille Bordey since series one.

'I wanted to do as well as Sara, and I was so aware that I was the new girl and that everybody wanted to see how I would do. It was so much pressure. I had nightmares every single night.

'Sara was so nice to me, though. I hope she's proud.'

I'm not interested in Love

Joséphine Jobert on chasing criminals – and nothing else – with detective Humphrey Goodman in Death in Paradise

Joséphine may hail from the city of love, but she admits that she's relieved not to be playing out a romantic storyline.

'I'm not interested in that. Florence likes Humphrey, she's impressed by him and she's happy to help him find a girlfriend, but the most important thing for her is doing her job well.'

'As an actress I like that because every single series or movie you're in wants you to have a love story. This is the first time I don't, which is great. Florence likes running after criminals – that's much more fun.'

Action girl Florence began her time on the fictional island of Saint Marie as a uniformed officer, and got promoted to plain-clothes detective towards the end of the last series. Now she's always in her trademark shorts – a conscious decision from Joséphine.

'People on Twitter are crazy about my shorts.' I told our producers I wouldn't wear skirts because they're too girly. Florence is a police officer – she has to be prepared to run. So we went shopping in London before the shoot started and now I have a lot of shorts.'

Joséphine, who is the cousin of Casino Royale star Eva Green, is no stranger to the French-speaking islands of Guadeloupe, the real Caribbean location where Death in Paradise is set.

'I filmed a French comedy series here a couple of years ago called Villa Karayib. And when I was younger, my family used to come to Guadeloupe on holiday. I did a lot of diving with my father and I remember the beautiful fish and the reef.'

'The best part of filming here is being able to go to the beach at the weekend.'

Despite being associated with glorious sun-kissed vistas, Joséphine reveals that the first place she's been recognised outside of France is in bitterly cold Iceland.

'I do get spotted at home but nobody noticed me when I went to London. I visited Iceland in February and went to the top of a waterfall. Suddenly, a British tourist said, "It's the girl from Death in Paradise!"'

Ian Puleston-Davies on swapping Weatherfield for the wilderness in Beowulf

Mane attraction

Baddie to the bone: Ian as Lagrathorn

FANTASY DRAMA Beowulf

SUNDAY / ITV / 7.00PM

It's Ian Puleston-Davies, but not as we know him. The former Corrie star, best known as builder

Owen Armstrong, joined the cast of ITV's medieval epic Beowulf: Return to the Shieldlands last week as long-haired baddie Lagrathorn, who rides into Herot to manipulate old flame Rheda (Joanne Whalley).

'I'd spent five years wearing a hard hat and high-vis jacket driving a white van, so I thought I needed to find something very different to take me away from the cobbles,' explains Ian, 57.

'When an offer came along to wear a wig, carry a sword and ride a white horse, I obviously wasn't going to say no.'

Filmed on a bespoke set on a site in the freezing-cold Pennines, Ian tells us he couldn't help but be impressed by the medieval village the designers were able to create.

'I suppose it's the nearest you'll ever get to travelling in the TARDIS. You're surrounded by campfires and hundreds of extras dressed in medieval clothes, then you spot yourself in armour and it's such a chill down the spine because everything looks like the real McCoy.'

'It's only when you stand on one of the rocks and your foot goes through it that you realise you're on a set. That did actually happen to me.'

While the job has been a welcome change from Weatherfield,

Ian admits he wanted more action scenes.

'I'm gutted because I'm actually quite a proficient sword fighter – I passed all of my exams when I was at drama school.'

'When I was a child, we had pet horses and I was in the local pony club, so I'm a confident rider, too,' says Ian, who grew up on a farm in Wales. 'The horses on Beowulf are amazing. Mine is a big beast of a stallion but I only get to strut around on him.

As Owen, with Debbie Rush (Anna) in Corrie

I want to gallop across the hills with the wind blowing through my wig.'

As well as Beowulf, Ian's currently filming new ITV crime thriller Marcella, with Anna Friel and Downton's Laura Carmichael. And he recently finished shooting in Budapest for a new version of Maigret, also for ITV, fronted by Rowan Atkinson, which left him feeling a little starstruck.

'Rowan's a very private man, but he was very generous on set and a joy to work with.'

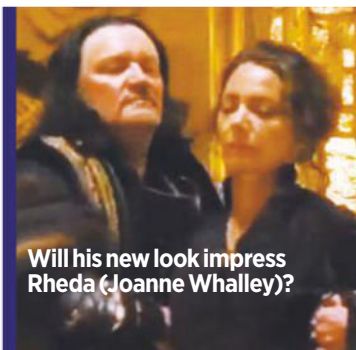

Scoring roles on three huge ITV dramas is a big relief for Ian, and validation that he made the right decision to wave goodbye to Corrie.

'Leaving a soap is terrifying – it's a huge leap of faith. I'd got used to having a regular salary and booking holidays. But my partner backed me and it all worked out.'

'In the end I finished Corrie on the Friday and started work on Beowulf on the Monday.'

Will his new look impress Rheda (Joanne Whalley)?

Stephen's proud to play fiction's first detective in Dickensian

Acclaimed actor Stephen Rea on why Dickens has plenty to say about the world we live in today

DRAMA

Dickensian

THURS, FRI / BBC1 / 8.00PM, 8.30PM

Did you know that Charles Dickens was the first writer to feature a detective in a work of fiction – Inspector Bucket in Bleak House? A fascinating fact? Stephen Rea certainly thinks so...

'Bucket is making it up as he goes along!' laughs Stephen, 69, who plays the good inspector in BBC1 period drama Dickensian, which continues this week, as well as the rich and influential Prince Vassily Kuragin in the Beeb's current epic adaptation of Tolstoy's War & Peace.

'It's a new deal. Detectives weren't something the world had back then. You just pointed at someone whom you assumed was guilty and they may or may not have got away with it.'

'Bucket is perhaps not as familiar as the more obvious Dickens characters like Scrooge and Fagin, but that makes it more interesting for me. He's a man of integrity and he's not even slightly corrupt. He's a beautiful character.'

In Dickensian, Inspector Bucket is investigating the murder of Jacob Marley, Ebenezer Scrooge's malevolent sidekick, whom we've only ever met as a ghost in A Christmas Carol. Bucket was new to Stephen, who went back to Bleak House to look for clues about the 19th-century sleuth.

'I hadn't read the book before,' he admits. 'I wanted to know how Dickens describes Bucket physically and so forth. I fancy myself as a detective – I'm nosy!'

'I'd read lots of other stuff, like you do at school, and seen some adaptations – I think the way most of us receive Dickens now is on television and film. For instance,

More
hard times

Bucket takes a novel approach to crimefighting

With Gillian Anderson (Anna Pavlovna) in War & Peace

a lot of people's sense of Oliver Twist is actually Oliver! – the musical rather than the novel.

'In that version [the Lionel Bart musical that was made into an Oscar-winning movie], Fagin has some wit and charm to his evil, and maybe that's going soft on him. In the book he's a pimp and a thief and he feeds off the poor.'

Stephen – who was Oscar-nominated for his lead role in 1992 movie The Crying Game – was involved in the scripts and

It was a tough world. And it's a really tough world now the concept for Dickensian, as created by Tony Jordan.

'The scripts didn't even exist in their entirety when I was approached, so I had to confirm with Tony the direction the series would go in,' says the Belfast-born actor, whose first TV role was a bit part in Crossroads back in 1964. 'But Tony and the other writers have written fantastic stuff and it has a top-class cast [his co-stars include Pauline Collins, Caroline Quentin, Anton Lesser and his War & Peace colleague Tuppence Middleton].'

Stephen was also drawn to some of the social parallels with the modern world.

'Dickens' fiction is all about a war against poverty, isn't it? Characters like Bob Cratchit and Nancy are struggling to make their lives work and bring children up in very difficult circumstances. And all we hear about now is exploitation of children, one way or another. We're all wearing the stuff that's cheap because it's produced by child labour in Bangladesh. There are those resonances in it.

'And understanding someone like Nancy – what chance did a woman have in the 19th Century? If you weren't married and you weren't a nun or very wealthy, it was a tough world. And it's a really tough world now.

'That's what's so fantastic about Dickens – the world he created is huge and there's so much in it. I think people will get a lot out of this.'

Although Stephen can't solve the mystery of whether or not he will do a second series of Dickensian, he's certainly having a wonderful time on the first.

'I just think it's a fantastic idea. When people ask me what I'm doing at the moment and I tell them about this thing where the Dickens characters are extracted from their original books, they all say, "What a brilliant idea". And everyone wishes that they'd thought of it, because it's superb.

'This is one of the great jobs. I'd say nobody but the BBC could do it, so we have to hang on to the licence fee.

Only they can produce something like Dickensian or War & Peace, and to this level. So grab yourself a nice drink and enjoy them – this is the BBC at its very best.'

John was put into an induced coma after his freak accident

REAL LIFE

My hero: Alison and John are now even closer

Ex-fireman John Willoughby reveals, in his own moving words, how a game of golf almost cost him his life...

DOCUMENTARY

24 Hours in A&E

WEDNESDAY / C4 / 9.00PM

Retired fireman John Willoughby, 53, spent his whole career risking his life to save others. But it wasn't a burning building that nearly killed him – it was a round of golf... Here, John, who features on C4 documentary series 24 Hours in A&E this week, tells us about the day that was nearly his last.

I worked my way up the ranks of the fire service and ended up as station commander of Bexley [in south-east London]. I was terrorist trained, so I'd go to incidents where everyone else was running away and I'd be going towards it. That's just what you do.

I've fallen through floors, been in explosions, I was there for 7/7, the London riots, the Olympics. After 32 years in the fire service, I thought I was invincible. That's just the way firefighters are. We're the people who say, "We're going to save this life, we're going into this building whether it collapses or not, because we're going to come out of the other side and later on have a cup of tea".

I always expected I'd go home at the end of a shift, and so did my wife, Alison – even during 7/7, when she couldn't get hold of me because all the phones were down.

To go through all that and then nearly die while playing a round of golf sent me round the bend a bit, to be honest. It was a beautiful June day. My friend Daz and I had reached the 18th tee and he made a terrible shot – a real shocker! He threw his club in frustration and it accidentally hit me in the face with such force that it snapped in two.

All the medical training I've had over the years kicked in. I was in and out of consciousness and was having severe fits, but I somehow managed to put myself into the recovery position. I also told Daz to call an ambulance and get a young lad who was cutting the greens to put pressure on my nose.

After an hour of being treated on the course, the air ambulance arrived. I was put into an induced coma to transfer me to hospital.

Watching yourself unconscious on TV is a strange sensation. I've seen my 24 Hours in A&E episode and found it really weird. There was some stuff they didn't show, as I was touch and go for a bit. The way my sons, Ben and Sam, who are both in their 20s, reacted in the hospital showed their love and integrity.

Alison went into survival mode. We've been married for 31 years and she's never normally like that – she cries at anything – but she knew she had to stay strong for the boys. We were a close family before, but even more so now. It has changed how I live every day. If there's something we want to do, we just do it. You don't know what's around the corner.

The first time I played a round of golf again, I took Daz with me. We got to the spot where it happened and it was fine – we needed to finish that round.

I'm a true believer in,

"When your number's up, it's up", but it wasn't my time. My first grandchild is on the way, my sons have moved into new houses and one is getting married soon. Life is good. I have a scar on my nose and an eyeball that isn't going to get any better – it's a reminder that I'm not so invincible!"

Just when Anna's found new love, an old face is back to torment her

Bad Phelan

Anna is horrified when the man who forced her to sleep with him turns up

Anna Windass's blood runs cold when she spies Pat Phelan on the cobbles, but new boyfriend Kevin Webster doesn't know about their tawdry history. He hires the former building boss as a labourer before embarking on a full-blown romance.

Phelan is back on the scene just as Anna feels she has her life back on track. She's loved up with Kevin and is undaunted when her old enemy Sally sees them kissing.

After Anna spies Phelan, she confides in Izzy, saying Kevin must never find out that she slept with the sleazebag two years ago to save her then partner Owen and their family from financial ruin.

Reveals Connor McIntyre, who returns as Phelan: 'He's now totally broke, and that's the reason why he's back from Dubai. The fact that Anna might not want to divulge the story of what happened between them is a huge advantage for him.'

Phelan explains to Kevin that he was once loaded, but his wife caught him with another woman and took him to the cleaners, which is why he's working as a labourer. He also mentions that he and Anna have history.

Adds Connor: 'He visits Anna and says if she doesn't cause him any trouble, he won't rock the boat.'

While Anna considers telling Kevin the truth, Phelan gains the garage owner's trust by tipping him off that a foreman is scamming him.

As Anna goes to confide in Kev, he explains that Phelan has told him about his prior involvement with her and Owen. But how much does Kevin really know?

Tracy witnesses the scene unfold as she sneaks into the Bistro hoping to surprise Robert. The place is in darkness as the electrics have gone and Tracy is stunned when she hears her boyfriend talking to Carla about their night together.

'Her blood runs cold,' says Kate Ford, who plays Tracy. 'Carla's ruined things for her once again. She can't let her get away with this.'

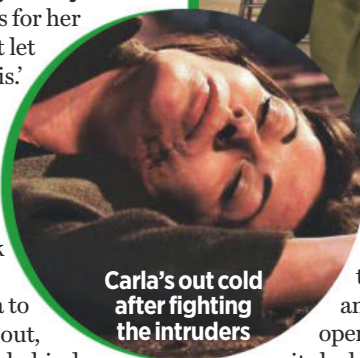

When Robert leaves, Tracy eyes the kitchen knives, but before she can do any damage, Jamie and Lee break in and scare Steph, before pinning Carla to the floor. Tracy slips out, but leaves her phone behind.

Out in the street, Carla runs after the lads, but gets mown down as they drive off.

An ambulance is called and Robert searches for Nick, who wonders why Carla was at his place of work. As Robert comes up with a cover story, Tracy gives him the evil eye, which Todd clocks.

Jamie ends up terrifying the wrong woman

Carla's out cold after fighting the intruders

Tracy sees and hears all, yet says nothing – for now

At the hospital, doctors announce that Carla needs an emergency operation. Nick sits by her bedside and promises her the perfect wedding.

The police find Tracy's phone and ask why she was at the scene of the crime. She panics, as does Robert when Leanne explains what's happened. Robert confronts Tracy, who claims she only called in to surprise him, but found Carla alone at the bar and left.

Leanne later shares her suspicions with Nick, who then asks Carla what on earth she was doing at the restaurant. Will she reveal that she was with Robert?

The strain is all too much for Tracy, who tells Todd that Carla and Robert had a one-night stand and now she wants revenge.

What has she got in mind?

“Carla's ruined things for Tracy again. She can't let her get away with this”

Les and Pam unite as she gives Paul a helping hand

A problem shared

Having shared little with Ben in recent months other than furtive glances in the Vic, Paul is happy as they start to rebuild their fraught relationship. But just as they're planning to spend some time together, up pops Abi to spoil things. Paul is left on his own as Ben goes back to playing it straight with his girlfriend. The hairdresser's troubled mood doesn't go unnoticed by Pam, who shares her worries with Les. Their mutual concern over their grandson brings them closer together, and leaves Les hopeful about their future. Paul, meanwhile, later confides in the pair about what's bothering him. Will he tell them about his secret lover?

Reaching out

Martin tries to get help for Stacey

We used to think Martin Fowler had as much nous as a Jersey Royal. But as Stacey's post-partum psychosis intensifies, it's he who takes action and coaxes his partner into going to hospital.

While there would never be a good time for Stacey to be ill, the timing is particularly messy. The Slaters are grieving for Charlie and preparing for his send-off. They're also busy doing what they're best at – having 'faarmly rars'. The Slaters blame Kat for causing his fatal heart attack and keep her name out of an obituary in the paper, while also banning her from the funeral.

As tensions escalate, Stacey spirals out of control. She becomes paranoid about baby Arthur's safety when Kyle turns up at her door, and feels betrayed when Martin shoos him away and lies that the visitor was someone else.

'Stacey's sole focus is the baby,' explains Lacey Turner, who plays her. 'Part of her psychosis is her fearing that Arthur's in danger, so she goes to extreme lengths to make sure he's protected. She's fearful of those around her, so she's not telling anyone what she's thinking.'

Kat's determined to ignore Mo's wishes and say goodbye to her dad, but as Alfie supports his wife, they're interrupted by Stacey's latest 'episode'. Kat becomes increasingly concerned, as does Sonia, who encourages Martin

Stacey has just a moment of sanity

It's a black day for Kat and her cousin to get help. Meanwhile, Stacey's behaviour becomes even worse. She panics when she sees that Jean has given Arthur to Martin, and when Kyle turns up again, she announces that the lad is the Devil incarnate.

Kush calls Martin when Stacey pitches up on his doorstep, claiming her boyfriend has been sent by the Devil to hurt Arthur. Martin rushes round and, during one of Stacey's lucid moments, persuades her that hospital is the only safe place for her and the baby. But as Stacey packs a bag, Jean worries that her daughter will do a U-turn if the doctors refuse to let Arthur stay with her. Will she be proved right?

Will family and friends provide some tea and sympathy?

We need to talk about Phil...

Martin protects Stacey as she battles her 'demons'

“She’s fearful of those around her, so she’s not telling anyone what she’s thinking”

Louise tells the family that her dad’s in hospital

Stacey Branning isn’t the only Albert Square resident in need of a doctor. Phil’s been told he has cirrhosis of the liver and won’t live to see next Christmas if he doesn’t stop drinking – although, as it’s never a merry affair in Walford, that’s hardly an incentive to get sober.

His estranged daughter, Louise, puts the Mitchells and Beales in the picture as they fret about his whereabouts. While Sharon initially refuses to believe the teenager’s claim, she soon realises that Louise isn’t lying when she heads to the hospital and gets the full story about her alcoholic husband’s prognosis.

‘Kaffy’ and Shirley are also there but, ironically, Phil isn’t – he’s discharged himself and gone to the Vic, intent on getting plastered again. The trio find him three sheets to the wind and kicking off after being refused more booze by Nancy – who’s been put in temporary charge because Mick and Linda have decided to extend their honeymoon.

For the 329th time, Sharon decides she’s had enough. Instead of going to Phil’s aid, she turns her back on him and returns to the hospital to collect her son Denny, who’s finally well enough to go home following the car crash at Christmas. Back in the Square, she then makes a surprising decision.

It’s left to Shirley to get Phil out of the pub, and she proves she’s not quite as hard as she looks when she becomes emotional at the thought of her ex having no one to support him. She’s so worried, she ends up in tears – much to Buster’s dismay.

As Phil sinks to a new low even for him, will Shirley follow her heart rather than her head?

Lindsey plots a positive result

HOLLYOAKS

We’ve seen what Lindsey will do to get what she wants, so it’s no surprise when she fakes a pregnancy in a bid to win Joe back. The killer doctor steals a used positive pregnancy test from the hospital and plants it for him to find. However, Joe thinks it’s Mercedes who’s up the duff and when Lindsey says it’s her, he still doesn’t bite. Only when she gets Cindy to say she’s having an abortion does Joe finally say he wants to be with her. What will Mercedes have to say about that? Elsewhere, Mrs St Claire slaps John Paul after she resigns and he accuses her of running away, and Esther is angry when she finds Grace’s engagement ring.

Anthony’s on call from day one

DOCTORS

As Anthony Harker (former Holby star Adam Astill) arrives as practice manager, Mrs Tembe is back on reception and putting on a brave face. But Valerie’s all over the place as she’s in the middle of chemo. When she makes a mistake, Mrs T covers and tells Anthony she’s usually reliable. He reveals that his mother also went through chemo, and the pair bond. However, he then refuses to put Mrs Tembe on the new Mill leaflets. What’s his game? Ex-EastEnders Khali Best and Footballers’ Wives star Susie Amy guest star on Monday.

Ailing Aaron lets Robert in on a devastating secret...

Aaron is, yet again, in a terrible state and attempts to ease the burden of his troubles by revealing a big secret.

You'd think he'd confide in his mum, Chas, or Paddy, the father figure who's stood by him through thick and thin. But the person he trusts is Robert, the man who came close to killing him and almost had him banged up for murder.

Aaron's rocked at the start of the week when he follows Paddy's car, thinking he's off to meet Tess, and instead sees his mother getting out. So he tails her and realises that she's seeing his dad, Gordon.

'Aaron hates his dad with a passion,' says Danny Miller, who plays the angst-ridden mechanic. 'He blames him for everything that has gone wrong in his life and hates the idea of Chas taking him back.'

Aaron has a go at Chas when she refuses to dump Gordon and he decides to leave the village. He's stopped on his way by Robert, who's shocked when Aaron collapses. He sees his self-harming injuries and realises that his body is overwhelmed by an infection.

While Chas and Gordon make their relationship public, Robert is with Aaron at the hospital and reels when he whispers a secret in his ear. What has he told him?

Unaware of her son's illness, Chas explains to Diane that Gordon has offered to buy her share of the pub, then worries when Doug reveals that Aaron didn't come home the previous night.

Chas and Gordon make plans, but will Robert upset them?

Back at the hospital, Aaron's disappeared and Robert is on the hunt for him. Later, when Chas asks where he is, Robert lies that they spent the night together.

Robert finds Aaron, who reveals more secrets, while Chas is in a spin thinking her son was planning to run away with his evil ex. Robert urges Aaron to talk to his mum, but he refuses and begs Robert not to betray his confidence. He agrees and lets Aaron know he's there for him.

What is Aaron's secret?

Careless whisper: Aaron tells Robert the cause of his distress

“Aaron blames Gordon for everything that has gone wrong in his life”

Knockout one: Aaron finds a badly beaten Dimato

NEIGHBOURS

Following Nate's confession, Aaron finds a badly injured Dimato, who threatens to go to the police if he doesn't get urgent medical attention. Karl treats the crook but he urges Nate to tell the truth. Worried that Karl is going to go to the police, Dimato gets one of his contacts to threaten Susan. When Nate finds out, he decides to stay silent, knowing how far Dimato will go to get what he wants, but Karl wants to get the cops involved. Nate finally hits upon an idea to keep the Kennedys safe. What's he going to do? Elsewhere, Josh realises that Piper is into Tyler, and Daniel uncovers something odd in the Lassiter's books.

Knockout two: Josh is taken to hospital after getting a pasting

HOME & AWAY

Poor Josh is out cold in the caravan park after being thumped by Tank. Phoebe and Ash are nearby but oblivious to the fact. Ash finally finds Josh when he hears his phone ringing and panics when his attempts to revive him are unsuccessful. Andy goes with Josh to hospital in an ambulance and is told that his brother needs brain surgery. After the op, doctors warn him that Josh might not wake up and ask him to consider organ donation. Andy flips and begs Josh to hold on. Is he going to make it? Meanwhile, Roo is shaken when James gets a call from his daughter, and Chris tells Hannah he loves her.

The good father

Adam helps Kirin get to grips with parenthood

Can Vanessa trust Kirin with their son?

Kirin has quickly learned that fatherhood isn't all it's cracked up to be and, just as he's at his wits' end, he finds comfort from the unlikelyst of sources when Adam agrees to show him how it's done.

This is the very same Adam who, not that long ago, appeared to be a 12-year-old trapped in a man's body. He's really manned up and shown us what Victoria sees in him.

He's so good with Johnny that Kirin feels jealous of the bond they have and warns Adam to stay away from his son.

'Kirin feels inadequate,' says Adam Fielding, who plays the teen dad. 'Adam has had all this time to bond with Johnny while he's been out of the picture and he's jealous of the special relationship they have.'

When Kirin has calmed down, he realises he's been unfair on Adam and says he should see Johnny. However, when he notices how tender Adam is with the baby, his heart breaks and he comes to a decision – what will it be?

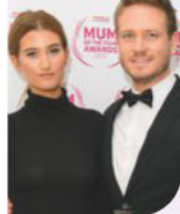

When Kirin hears Vanessa defending his paternal skills, he attempts to prove himself by booking the exhausted vet into a spa and promising to look after Johnny for the day. Then he realises he's arranged to meet a buyer and wonders how he's going to juggle work with childcare...

Jolie plays the troubled witch

Maleficent

Disney's charming family fairy tale

Sky Family 6.15pm - 8.00pm ★★

Angelina Jolie gives a spellbinding performance as the evil fairy – who isn't really evil at all, but simply misunderstood – in Disney's epic re-imagining of Sleeping Beauty. Although it comes across as Lord of the Rings 'Lite' in places, this is an ambitious and good-looking fable which finishes off with a nicely empowering message for little girls about women doing it for themselves. Elle Fanning, Juno Temple and Imelda Staunton are among the supporting cast. Dir: Robert Stromberg 2014, PG, 105min

PREMIERE Oddball museum guards Christopher Walken, Morgan Freeman and William H Macy have become so attached to three of the exhibits they protect that, when their snooty boss proposes to ship the artworks overseas, they hatch a crazy scheme to pinch them instead. This amiable crime comedy will be too gently paced for some viewers, but its veteran stars have fun with their quirky characters.

Film4 9.00pm - 10.55pm ★★

This breezy movie scrutinises Alfred Hitchcock's marriage to Alma Reville. You won't find any real insights into Hitch's movie-making process, or his psyche here, but it's still an enjoyable biopic, with Anthony Hopkins on good form as the title character and Helen Mirren as excellent as ever as his beloved wife, Alma. ● CRIME DRAMA /

Friday 22 January / 9:00pm / Sky 1 HD

NEW BAFTA-nominated actor

James Nesbitt stars in a bold new crime drama co-created by legendary comic book writer Stan Lee and produced by the makers of Downton Abbey.

Brilliant but troubled cop Harry Clayton (Nesbitt) is a compulsive gambler in danger of losing the thing he values most: his family. Then, one night when his huge debts have been called in and he's at rock bottom, he meets the beautiful and enigmatic Eve (Sienna Guillory), who gives him a mysterious bracelet said to endow the wearer with immense luck.

To his surprise, Harry's fortunes begin to shift. However, this kind of luck appears to come with a price and he finds himself sucked into a sinister crime wave sweeping London. With the bracelet on his side, he sets himself against the city's dark forces. But will luck alone be enough to save him?

Set against an atmospheric backdrop in the capital, this crime drama is a thrilling story of fate, gambling, superstition and the consequences of our actions.

Sunday Highlights

SUNDAY 17 January

Pierre's rash actions result in him learning to shoot

War & Peace

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / BBC1

After jealous Pierre (Paul Dano) made his rash challenge to suave Dolokhov (Tom Burke), he must now learn to use a pistol in preparation for their snowy duel. Typically for this series, the resulting gunfight is filmed and acted beautifully. But was Pierre's jealousy misplaced? His wife Helene (Tuppence Middleton, who can also be seen playing Miss Havisham in BBC1's Dickensian) seems to have another lover closer to home. There are further sublime scenes between Natasha (Lily James) and Sonya (Aisling Loftus) as the force of their passions awakens, but hearts are broken along the way as Tolstoy's epic story progresses. Every scene is a masterpiece in another truly great episode. ★★★★★ AL

Will Stoke be celebrating today?

ON SKY & VIRGIN

Football

● SPORT / from 1.00pm / Sky Sports 1

LIVE In recent years, today's match between Liverpool and Manchester United (k-o 2.05pm) would be the big draw, but a more interesting game will be the later one between Stoke City and Arsenal (k-o 4.15pm). The Potters have turned themselves into a dynamic attacking force of late, with strikers Marko Arnautovic and Bojan and midfielder Xherdan Shaqiri a pleasure to watch all season, and will give title pretenders Arsenal plenty to worry about at the Britannia Stadium. ★★★★★ NP

EXTRA! TV ON THE INTERNET...

The Rack Pack

● DRAMA BBC iPlayer

The first feature-length drama to go straight to iPlayer takes us back to the 1970s and 80s and one of sport's fiercest rivalries. Alex 'Hurricane' Higgins was loud and flash and liked the ladies and a drink or two. Steve Davis was shy and controlled, and the pair inevitably clashed. But this isn't about who was the best snooker player, it's about the times, the music and the men, played by Luke Treadaway (Higgins, above) and Will Merrick (Davis). Who knew snooker was such fun?! ★★★★★ JL

Thursday connects Morse's latest case with a previous one

Endeavour

● DRAMA / 8.00pm / ITV

When an au pair goes missing in mysterious circumstances, Morse is left to question an array of oddball suspects worthy of an Agatha Christie novel. Thursday is quick to connect the case to an attempted murder of another young woman four years previously and takes a keen interest in Morse's progress. But the investigation takes a curious twist when a body is found with wounds that suggest a vicious attack by a tiger. Is a big cat on the prowl in Oxford? Or is there a killer pretending to be one? Roger Allam gives a stand-out performance as Thursday, a tired man looking to leave his mark on the world before it's too late. ★★★★★ DH

Circus star Sonya Allen

Show of Shows

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / BBC4

NEW This incredible, mesmerising film tells the story of 19th and 20th-century circus, vaudeville and sideshow performers. Rare archive footage and performers' home movies are set to a hypnotic score by members of Icelandic band Sigur Rós, as we see everything from knife-throwers and tightrope walkers to achingly sad scenes of polar bears performing for thrilled crowds. ★★★★★ EP

The nuns face a difficult time ahead as local babies are affected by thalidomide

● DRAMA / 8.00 pm / BBC1

An emotional episode as we return to Poplar's Nonnatus House

NEW

This classy period drama can always be relied upon to deal with difficult issues in a moving and sympathetic but honest fashion and that's still the case as the new series begins. The midwives are upset and baffled when two babies with serious deformities are born in Poplar. With hindsight, we know it's down to Dr Turner's use of thalidomide to treat pregnancy symptoms but, for now, he and the midwives are unaware of that as they try to support Rhoda (Liz White), the shocked but doting mum of a baby born without limbs. Meanwhile, Trixie finds a new purpose but Sister Evangelina and Sister Julianne are less than impressed by it! ★★★★★ cc

An American couple filmed their rescue of a humpback whale

Unbelievable Moments

● DOCUMENTARY / 6.00pm / ITV

LAST ONE Alastair Stewart introduces more incredible pieces of film footage in the final programme of this series. There are tales of animal rescue, from a humpback whale fighting for its life after being caught in fishing nets to a puppy stuck in a pipe in Thailand, plus huge explosions such as the Colombian firework factory that went up in flames and the Chinese petro-chemical plant that blazed for days. Terrifying moments also include an alligator attack on a car and a minibus dragged off the road in a flood. ★★★ SB

Rheda must keep her friends close – and enemies closer still

Beowulf

● DRAMA / 7.00pm / ITV

This action-packed fantasy drama is flagging after a strong start, but we're still intrigued. Our hero is on a mission to save his snivelling half-brother, held captive somewhere in the Shieldlands. Accompanied by Rate, Beowulf gallops off into the wilderness, racing to find both Slean and Thane Scorann, the man who could swing the leadership vote in Rheda's favour. Back in Herot, the disgraced wife of a skinshifter throws herself at Rheda's feet as the people bay for her blood, and false friends queue up to give her counsel. Is there anyone Rheda can trust? ★★★★★ EB

● Mane attraction: see page 17

ALSO ON...

You Only Live Twice

● THRILLER / 3.20pm / ITV

ITV continues its run of 007 movies, this one featuring Donald Pleasence as Blofeld, head of SPECTRE. ★★★★★

Columbo

● DRAMA / 2.00pm / 5USA

A treat for fans of the rumpled cop – the pilot episode, Prescription Murder, from 1968, starring a young-looking Peter Falk. ★★★

Can Detective Gordon (inset) outwit the fiendish Theo Galavan?

Gotham: Rise of the Villains

● DRAMA / 10.00pm / C5

The lunatics have not just taken over the asylum, they have taken over the city as the new series of the Batman prequel continues. Life in Gotham is darker than ever as four escaped inmates of the Arkham Asylum for the criminally insane cause mayhem, gleefully throwing hostages off buildings and dousing a busload of cheerleaders in petrol. It is all part of a master plan concocted by super-evil, mega-rich villain Theo Galavan (James Frain). As the reinstated Detective James Gordon (Ben McKenzie) investigates, the future Batman, young Bruce Wayne, does the unthinkable and fires the faithful Alfred. It may be chaos in Gotham but this second series is bang on track to be a gripping affair. ★★★★★ JE

Nikki finds a link to an old case which could help solve a murder

Silent Witness

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / BBC1

Silent Witness has cornered the market in grim murders and things are suitably gloomy this week when an ex-con is found brutally stabbed to death. The chief suspect is a recently released child killer – we told you it was grim. Jack, meanwhile, needs to reach for his trainers when another potential suspect flees. ‘Man, I hate it when they run,’ he complains. Elsewhere, Nikki’s eagle eye spots a potentially vital connection to an old murder which could blow open the whole case. Continues tomorrow, 9.00pm. ★★★★★ DH

Griff heads north

Griff's Great Britain

● DOCUMENTARY / times vary / ITV

Griff Rhys Jones arrives in the beautiful Scottish Highlands and is tasked with finding a golden eagle – not easy when there are only 400 pairs in the region’s 12,000 square miles. During his quest, Griff peers into an empty eyrie strewn with the remains of prey – ‘a carpet of rotting carcasses’ – and takes to the skies to get an eagle’s perspective on the world. ★★★ EP

Kate (right) makes Lulu's first day at work one to remember

Crashing

● COMEDY / 10.00pm / C4

It's only the second episode of this new comedy series but we're already loving the ‘property guardians’ living in a disused London hospital. Lulu is the latest newcomer, while Melody tries to persuade Colin (Adrian Scarborough) to move in, too. The fact that she does this during a messy lunch at Anthony’s no-cutlery restaurant We Don't Give a Fork doesn't work in her favour, though... As Lulu, writer and creator Phoebe Waller-Bridge (Broadchurch) is the free-spirit third point in the love triangle with Anthony (Damien Molony) and Kate (Louise Ford), although no one's admitting that out loud just yet... ★★★★★ JP

Hemsworth as Hunt

Rush

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / Film4

Playboy James Hunt and his dour Austrian rival in F1 racing, Niki Lauda, take centre stage for this high-octane, thoroughly entertaining movie set during the sport's 1970s heyday. Chris Hemsworth is excellent as Hunt, a man who seems more interested in champagne, models and air hostesses than any race, while the calculating Lauda (an equally impressive Daniel Brühl), strives for the perfect racing car. ★★★★★ IR

Poor Joyce
is at the end of her tether

Benidorm

● COMEDY / 9.00pm / ITV

Trouble in paradise as the sunny sitcom continues...

There's definitely a frosty feel around the pool at the Solana tonight – but Benidorm isn't experiencing a cold snap, it's just Sheron Dawson giving Eddie daggers across the chlorine. But is if she thinks a holiday with her father-in-law is bad, wait until she gets home...

Meanwhile, Kenneth believes he's about to be a millionaire, so starts flashing the cash, only to find his inheritance has a lot more bite than he was expecting. Elsewhere, Joyce (Sherrie Hewson) is in a jam when her first-aid instructor cancels, and Geoff and family go paint-balling – but they use gloss, which gives Geoff the best line about mum Noreen – 'she's a senior citizen, not a skirting board!' ★★★★★ JL

'Angela Merkel'
deals with notes
of a different kind

Tracey Ullman's Show

● COMEDY / times vary / BBC1

While Judi Dench spends the day blocking the toilets of five-star hotels – just because she can get away with it – Camilla Parker Bowles lets Prince George take the tractor for a spin. As Tracey Ullman's sketch show continues with her brilliant impressions of iconic figures, Steve Pemberton guests as half of a couple who accidentally bring back an illegal immigrant under their camper van and take him under their wing – much to his horror. But our favourite sketch has to be Angela Merkel – 'the honey with the money' – singing a bit of jazz. ★★★★★ JL

Can Swansea's
Gomis return to his goalscoring form
of last season?

Football

● SPORT / 7.00pm / Sky Sports 1

LIVE Swansea City host Watford tonight for an intriguing Premier League match (k-o 8.00pm). Since Garry Monk left the Swans there has been a slight improvement under the guidance of interim coach Alan Curtis. Swansea are still deep in relegation trouble, however, so they'll be looking to take something from Watford, one of the surprise packages of the season. With players such as Bafétimbi Gomis, the Welsh team have potential matchwinners in their ranks: now would be a good time to show that. ★★★★★ NP

Miss Transgender

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / BBC3

NEW One-off following three beauty-pageant contestants who are competing for the title of the first Miss Transgender UK. ★★★★★

The Undateables

● REALITY / 9.00pm / C4

This week's singles include a man who was paralysed from the chest down after a car accident. ★★★★★

For What it's Worth, BBC1

Back in 2014, the presenter and mum of four told us what life has been like since she left her role as co-host of ITV's This Morning in 2009.

'I loved the buzz of daily live TV, but after 30-odd years I wouldn't necessarily want to do it again five days a week. I have a really wonderful life now which revolves around my husband and the children, writing, cycling, oh and the odd bit of filming!'

Can the Bunt family survive trial by flat-pack?

The Secret Life of the Family

● DOCUMENTARY / 10.00pm / C5

Six families across Britain attempt those annoying weekend tasks (apparently, the average family has 12 jobs on its 'to do' list) as this observational series continues. The Demirels decide it's finally time to paint the kitchen – with dramatic results – while the Bunts from Bristol have an item of flat-pack furniture (their first ever!) to put together. Bedfordshire mum Claire Smith begs husband Ken to tackle the loft and Warwickshire family the Fossetts must mend a dodgy gate before one of their camels makes a bid for freedom (yes, we did say camels). It makes for uncomfortable viewing, though, especially when you begin to get that nagging feeling you should be doing at least one of your 12 chores... ★★★ MC

EE sales rep Jonny is in the running

Phone Shop Idol

● DOCUMENTARY / times vary / BBC2

NEW Mobile-phone sales reps are put in the spotlight in this entertaining six-part series as the race to win the Oscars of the telecoms industry – the Shop Idol award – gets under way. We follow several sales stars, or 'Chosen Ones' – including EE's Jonny Brown – who have been nominated by their employers. But first, Idol judges Mike, Sunetra and Christian unleash their mystery shoppers, armed with hidden cameras, to put the candidates to the test... ★★★★★ MC

Abu Rumaysah

The Jihadis Next Door

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / C4

NEW Abu Rumaysah has become one of Britain's most wanted men, suspected of appearing in a recent ISIS propaganda video. He is one of the subjects of Jamie Roberts' documentary, which follows some of the extremists living in Britain today. What motivates them? How far will they go to achieve their aims? A powerful and timely film. ★★★ SB

New year, new Digby (right). Inset: Hanssen

Holby City

● DRAMA / times vary / BBC1

Never a man to show his emotions, it can be hard to read the Nordic boss of Holby. Did that slight eyebrow raise mean happiness? Sadness? Intense annoyance? Not that we're complaining – while the rest of Holby frets over the slightest thing, the cool-as-a-cucumber CEO is always a breath of fresh Scandinavian air. But something is definitely ruffling Hanssen's usually unflappable feathers tonight... Elsewhere, Digby decides it's time for a change, Jac is inspired by a balloon giraffe and Guy Self wants to take over the world (again), yawn. ★★★ JL

Katniss joins the Games

The Hunger Games

● FANTASY / 9.00pm / Film4

Jennifer Lawrence is on fire in this adaptation of the first novel in Suzanne Collins' hit trilogy. She's plucky teen Katniss, who lives in a nightmarish future US that controls its people by holding a televised event in which 24 youngsters fight to the death. Tense and moving, it has a great supporting cast including a chilling Donald Sutherland as evil President Snow. ★★★★★ JR

John presents
a veritable banquet of breads

● FOOD / 8.00pm / BBC2

New technology and changing tastes mean a whole new world for our bakers

LAST ONE The four time-travelling bakers conclude their journey in the year of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee: 1900, when 80 per cent of bread is now factory made. Technology has revolutionised the industry, high streets are booming and artisan bakers must reinvent themselves if they're to stay in business. Sweet biscuits from the continent and dainty morning rolls, as served by the top hotels, are the latest trend. The bakers set up a fancy shop on the high street, and cake-maker Harpreet Baura is in her element as she leads them in making pastries, tarts and turnovers. 'It's about stuff yourself and treat yourself', she says as she makes an afternoon tea fit for royalty. ★★★★★ MC

Victorian Bakers

The story of a family who escaped death on a motorway

Saved

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / ITV

The series telling the stories of ordinary people rescued by quick-thinking strangers continues with the tale of teenager Dannie Phillips, who found herself trapped in her overturned car sinking into floodwater. The bravery and expertise of off-duty nurse Lizzie Wheatcroft saved Dannie's life, as we hear in emotional testimonies and watch in a dramatic reconstruction. We also learn how Darius Khan and family were rescued by passer-by Martin Langlands following a tyre blow-out on a motorway. Heart-stopping, life-affirming stuff. ★★★★★ AL

Richard and Noel get a taste of Copenhagen

Travel Man

● TRAVEL / 8.30pm / C4

Richard Ayoade's mini-break guide continues with a jam-packed trip to the Danish capital, Copenhagen. To keep him company, The Mighty Boosh's Noel Fielding tags along as they experience the best the largest city in Scandinavia can offer. They begin with a breakneck-speed bike tour during which they lose their guide and end up viewing the city's most visited attraction – the Little Mermaid statue – on their own. After a bite to eat of a classic open sandwich ('it's a city without a top deck of bread', says Richard helpfully) there's a bit of underground art, a ride on a rollercoaster, pastries and a trip to the Carlsberg museum. ★★★ JL

Empire of the Tsars

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / BBC4

LAST ONE The delightful and engaging Lucy Worsley concludes her examination of Russia's Romanov dynasty by charting its turbulent and tragedy-filled downfall, focusing on the years 1825-1918. Three centuries of Romanov power would be undone during this time, in which four tsars struggled to contain a population demanding reform and revolution. Writers and thinkers spoke out, including Ivan Turgenev, who documented the appalling life of the serfs and was put under house arrest. Lucy also describes the rise and fall of notorious 'holy man' Rasputin and the chilling day that Tsar Nicholas II and his family were wiped out in a massacre in the basement of their own home. ★★★★★ EP

10,000 BC: Two Tribes

● REALITY / 10.00pm / C5

NEW 'This is supposed to be 10,000 BC but it's more like 10,000 Easy,' boasts one idiotic contestant as TV's toughest reality show returns. But he and his fellow volunteers, who've signed up for two months in the Stone Age (aka the Bulgarian wilderness) are soon wearing animal-skin clothes, digging their own loo and cooking a boar's head for dinner. If that wasn't enough, a 12-strong rival tribe (who'll be introduced in tomorrow's episode) will be competing for resources. ★★★★★ CC

Making movie history:
Helen Mirren and
Anthony Hopkins

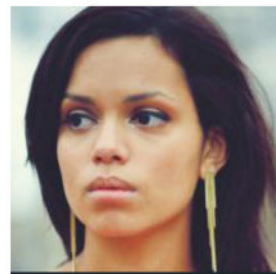

Hitchcock/Psycho

● DRAMA / from 9.00pm / Film4

Anthony Hopkins proves yet again what a terrific, versatile actor he is with another 'impersonation' of a historical great. Here he takes on the rotund talent of director Alfred Hitchcock. The film is set in 1959, soon after Hitch's massive success with North by Northwest, when he was arguing with the studio about his next project. They wanted more spies; he wanted to do something different. Then Hitch read about a serial killer called Ed Gein, and Psycho (screening directly after this) was born... It's a fascinating film about movie-making, and the woman behind the legend, with Helen Mirren stealing the show as Hitch's wife, Alma Reville. ★★★ IR

Ashley's story

Murdered by My Boyfriend

● DRAMA /
9.00pm / BBC3

Another chance to see this heartbreaking drama, based on a true story. Ashley, 17 (a BAFTA-winning Georgina Campbell), falls for Reece, but months into their relationship, he slams her head against the wall. She's pregnant and can't see a way out. Soon he's ruined her self-confidence and ends up killing her. A powerful and, sadly, not uncommon story.

Dermot O'Leary hosts as a brilliant year of top telly is celebrated

NEW If proof were needed that we are living in a golden age of television, then the array of top talent and sensational shows celebrated at this year's NTAs is surely it. From Poldark to Gogglebox via Doctor Foster, Strictly, Bake Off and Game of Thrones, we're spoilt for choice. So who will win? That's down to us, the voting public, who will have our say before

Dermot reveals the winners at the ceremony from London's O2. ★★★★★ AL

Pick OF THE Day

Poldark, Life Story, Gogglebox and Doctor Foster are nominated. Inset: Host Dermot O'Leary

What's hiding underneath that beard?

Trust Me, I'm a Doctor

● HEALTH / 8.00pm / BBC2

This week the Trust Me doctors are in Glasgow to probe more everyday health matters. The trend for big beards shows no sign of waning, but they're not to everyone's taste as some people can only think about what's lurking within them. Chris van Tulleken investigates whether beards are unhygienic. Meanwhile, Michael Mosley asks experts if eating meat is bad for us and Saleyha Ahsan finds out how to spot signs of sepsis. ★★★★★ JP

Newsworthy: Maxine Peake and Harry Enfield

ON SKY & VIRGIN

Red Top

● COMEDY / 10.00pm / GOLD

NEW Maxine Peake stars as former News of the World and Sun editor Rebekah Brooks in this Comic Strip Presents special that, explains writer Peter Richardson, 'lampoons the phone-hacking scandal and world of politics and press proprietors'. Harry Enfield plays Brooks' former husband, Ross Kemp, while

Russell Tovey is Andy Coulson and Stephen Mangan Tony Blair. While the real-life phone hacking scandal happened in the noughties, this is set in the 1970s with a disco soundtrack and sees Rebekah roller-skate through The Sun's newsroom while Rupert Murdoch is locked in a room by his future wife Wendi Deng. ★★★★★ SB

Thursday Highlights

An oblivious Amelia gets cosy with the evil Compeyson

Dickensian

● DRAMA / 8.00pm / BBC1

Is there a greater rat on TV than Mr Compeyson? Played with delicious venom by Tom Weston-Jones, the villain is finally making romantic progress with Miss Amelia Havisham (Tuppence Middleton). Meanwhile, Honoria Barbary pleads with Scrooge to let her father out of debtors' prison. Of course, she has about as much chance of melting Scrooge's heart as Mr

Bumble does of finally getting a night-time visit from Mrs Bumble! One minor tragedy is that Inspector Bucket, unquestionably the series' greatest character due to Stephen Rea's mesmeric performance, isn't in this episode (he's back tomorrow night, though) but it's still impossible to take your eyes off this brilliant drama. ★★★★★ DH

● More hard times: see page 18

Delving into the mysteries of our minds

The Brain with David Eagleman

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / BBC4

NEW Dr David Eagleman's introduction to the workings of the brain is mind-blowing. Reality is not as we know it, according to him. In the first of a six-part series, he reveals that 'reality' is simply how our brain perceives the outside world. We meet Mike May, who lost his sight at the age of three. When it was restored some 40 years later, Mike's eyes worked perfectly – but because his brain was not used to processing visual information, his sight was skewed. 'Vision is a whole body experience', explains David. 'All of our senses depend on each other.' ★★★★★ SB

Dorien finds the morning after a little challenging

Birds of a Feather

● COMEDY / 8.30pm / ITV

Sharon gets the hump this week when she's left on her own on Saturday night with nobody to share her jumbo-size pizza. When Tracey's 'quick drink' with cop Barry turns into a late-night date, Sharon is determined to pile on the guilt and remind her sister that Darryl's body is still warm and Garth needs her attention. Meanwhile, Lesley Joseph does a classic comedy turn as a legless Dorien, rolling in after a night out. But can she calm the tension between the sparring sisters in her brand new role as agony aunt for Get a Life magazine? ★★★★★ MC

Katie's looking for love

Date My Mum

● DOCUMENTARY / 10.00pm / C4

NEW Two brave single mums let their kids help them search for love online in this touching film. They do it with the help of sites like My Lovely Parent, which lets children sign their parents up and pick their matches. In this film, the kids meet and quiz potential suitors before deciding who is good enough to date their mums – but will they manage to find a partner who meets everyone's approval? ★★★★★ SB

Photographer Jay is under suspicion

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / BBC1

Someone has committed a model murder... but who was it?

We're back on the golden beaches of Saint Marie tonight for another fun-filled murder mystery, this time involving a model killed at a fashion show. But whodunit? Could it have been the fashion designer unhappy after she ripped one of his dresses? Or a jealous fellow model lashing out at the competition? Perhaps show photographer Jay (Paul Nicholls) had an axe to grind? Relax – good old Humphrey will work it out! Meanwhile, Florence offers Humphrey a woman's perspective on dating and JP starts acting strangely when he recognises a suspect. Another excellent, sun-kissed instalment. ★★★★★ EB

● I'm not interested in love: see page 16

Death in Paradise

Making trouble: Ralph Coates

Jericho

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / ITV

Charles (Daniel Rigby) and Isabella (Jeany Spark) wed in order to make sweet business together. But the romance we're really waiting for is between Annie (Jessica Raine) and Johnny (Hans Matheson). With Annie's kids doing well – Martha singing for her supper at the tavern and George running the shop – is the coast clear? Don't count on it... one secret could wreck two partnerships. As head honcho Ralph Coates (Clarke Peters) creates powerful enemies with his clampdown on rogue traders and fever strikes, there's big drama in little Jericho... ★★★ AL

Michael Wood meets Korean scholars at the Cemetery of Confucius, Qufu

The Story of China

● DOCUMENTARY / 9.00pm / BBC2

NEW Historian Michael Wood presents this six-part in-depth analysis of the oldest continuous state on Earth, exploring the events and ideas that have shaped China's fascinating history over thousands of years. In this first programme Michael focuses on the importance of family and ancestry, beginning by observing a ceremony in which 300 members of the Ching family visit the Wuxi graveside of an ancestor who died in 1049. He also hears myths explaining how the nation came to exist, explores the legacy of Confucius and reveals how Qin Shi Huang, the first emperor, created a unified China. ★★★ EP

Friday Highlights

FRIDAY 22 January

Judi Dench, Bill Nighy and Celia Imrie return

The Second Best Exotic Marigold Hotel

● DRAMA / 8.00pm / Sky Movies Premiere

PREMIERE After the surprise box-office smash about a group of British pensioners relocating to India to live in a retirement hotel, it was inevitable that there would be a sequel. It's not a patch on the first movie, but there is lots to enjoy, including a handsome cast addition in

Richard Gere. Maggie Smith, Judi Dench, Celia Imrie, Bill Nighy and Dev Patel all return, and romance is in the air with Nighy courting Dench and Imrie juggling suitors. The jokes are a little tired, but there are moving moments, and Smith and Dench, in particular, add a touch of class. ★★★ IR

Lucky Man

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / Sky 1

NEW Harry Clayton (played by James Nesbitt) is a maverick cop with a gambling habit and a complicated personal life. Sounds formulaic? Read on. For Lucky Man is co-created by Stan Lee, of Marvel Comics fame, and takes a fantastical turn when Harry is given a special bracelet by mysterious Eve (Sienna Guillory) and his fortunes change. A thrilling take on the cop drama, as Harry probes the murder of a casino boss... ★★★★★ AL
● A run of luck: see page 10

Is Nicole in or out?

First Dates

● REALITY / 10.00pm / C4

Nicole, 26, from Leytonstone, wants a date who's 'chatty and interesting'. But it's not looking good for Gary, 32, from Richmond, until he and Nicole discover a shared passion for the Eurovision Song Contest and it looks less likely that Nicole will escape out of the toilet window... We also meet bisexual Coryn, 32, from Manchester and Liam, 29, from Doncaster. There's a spark – but is Liam ready for confident Coryn? ★★★★★ JL

The men behind the music: Nile Rodgers and (inset) Mark Ronson

Music Moguls

● DOCUMENTARY / 10.00pm / BBC4

The second programme in this three-part examination of the movers and shakers of the music industry meets some of the producers who have shaped pop history. David Bowie fans will get chills as Tony Visconti takes us through each isolated track of Bowie's 1977 song Heroes, while

Giorgio Moroder and Chic's Nile Rodgers reveal what goes into creating a pop classic. We also meet Mark Ronson, the producer behind monster hits including Bruno Mars' Uptown Funk and Amy Winehouse's Valerie, and 1980s maestro Trevor Horn. ★★★★★ EP

Jack Whitehall pops in

Friday Night Feast

● FOOD / 8.00pm / C4

Jamie Oliver and Jimmy Doherty are hanging out with actor, comedian and writer Jack Whitehall this week, with Gurkha chicken curry and a bizarre but intriguing-sounding chocolate pizza on the menu. Jimmy makes a ham-smoker out of plant pots, baking trays and a colander, and the lads meet Belgian brewers who have a tasty solution to the problem of wasting bread. ★★★ EP

Harry's heavy drinking and gambling is causing concern

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / ITV

Harry's warned to change his lifestyle but can't face up to reality

With the Dolly sisters draining Harry's wallet as fast as they can a glass of the finest champagne, life seems to be spiralling out of control for the party-loving businessman. In true Harry Selfridge style, he deals with the sudden death of his mother by drinking and gambling even more, which deeply worries his children. 'You are in danger of losing everyone who truly cares about you', warns George, but their concerns fall on deaf ears. Elsewhere, Mrs Edwards meets the cosmetics giant Elizabeth Arden (Madeleine Potter), who is completely bonkers but the pair share some common ambitions. And, finally, poor Mr Grove gets some bad news. ★★★★★ JL

The Dolly sisters are creating further problems for Harry

The shady side of the Cayman Islands

Britain's Trillion Pound Paradise

● DOCUMENTARY / times vary / BBC2

NEW Soaking up the Caribbean sun, the three islands that make up the British territory of Cayman have a well-documented shady side. Cayman's tax-free status means £1.5trillion has landed in its banks, there are twice as many companies registered there as people and one building is apparently home to thousands of registered companies. In this film, investigative reporter Jacques Peretti gets the lowdown from politicians, financiers, millionaires and British expats to find out just how Cayman ticks. ★★★ EP

Shetland

● DRAMA / 9.00pm / BBC1 (Wales, BBC2)

Jimmy has a permanent scowl because the big boys from the mainland have denied him access to the murder victim from the boat. The fuming cop's not sure exactly what's going on, but he's certain that the mysterious Michael Maguire is at the centre of it all. But Jimmy has to work out how he can question Maguire, who knows his police rights inside out. Is Maguire the killer? Or is there another explanation for his furtive behaviour? This episode makes full use of Shetland's rugged landscape as Jimmy struggles to get a break in an absorbing case. ★★★★★ DH

"Here's how this advanced new portable heater with quartz infrared technology can CUT your heating bills by up to 48%!"*

- Evenly heats a large room, from wall to wall and from floor to ceiling, in just minutes.
- Perfectly insulated, the outer shell never gets hot, so it's 100% safe and secure for all family members.
- Obtains a better air quality without reducing humidity and oxygen levels thanks to a cleaner and more ecological energy source.
- Kills 90% to 99% of bacteria and air-borne viruses in hours!
- Easy to use and requires no maintenance.

More than 1 million portable quartz infrared heaters already sold.... in the USA alone!

FINALLY AVAILABLE IN THE UK!

You have probably heard all about this new and remarkable technological home energy innovation in the media: The new advanced portable infrared heater, Eco Quartz®.

With more than a million units that have already been sold in the USA alone, this new type of portable heater with quartz infrared technology is an unprecedented success in the world of heating!

Your new Eco Quartz® infrared heater is so efficient that it's going to pay for itself in a short time thanks to huge savings in energy – AND money – off your heating bills each and every day during the cold months.

Did you know that...

...traditional heating systems are a significant cause of house fires in the U.K.

One of the many advantages of the Eco Quartz® infrared heater is that it is absolutely impossible for it

60 day free trial
reserved for all readers of this publication

This new portable heater with quartz infrared technology is going to save you up to 48% off your heating bills each and every month thanks to its each and every month thanks to its newly patented revolutionary and ultra-efficient systems – or you can return it within 60 days and this trial will not have cost you anything.

to start a fire. Do you know why?

Simply because its infrared heating system works without any combustion and it never reaches the required temperature to ignite a fire.

The outer shell of the Eco Quartz® infrared heater gets only slightly warm so it can never burn you or others. Pets, especially cats, are going to spend hours lounging on top of this gentle source of heat.

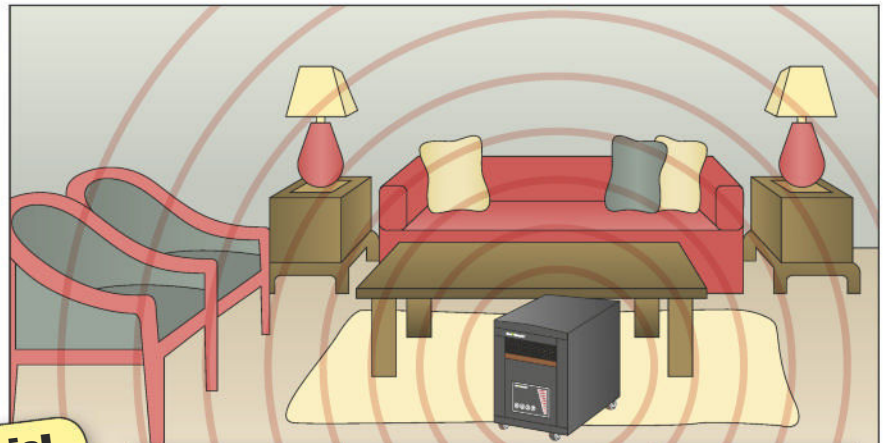

Unlike the other conventional mobile heaters that you're used to – and which only heat up a small area surrounding it – this new portable Eco Quartz® infrared heater quickly and completely heats up a large room of up to 1,000 square feet from wall to wall and floor to ceiling!

And in no case can it ever produce harmful carbon monoxide.

It produces no smoke.

It emits no odour.

And it's ultra silent.

Successfully tested in Canada, the cutting edge technology at the heart of this revolutionary new mobile infrared heater is the result of the latest research.

1 Isolated infrared heating chambers are contained within each Eco Quartz® infrared heater.

2 The ultra-powerful infrared tube quartz lamps are immediately engaged when turned on and produce an intense heat without any combustion.

3 This intense heat is then passed through copper cylinders which eliminate up to

Here's how the new Eco Quartz® infrared
heater works:

99.9% of airborne bacteria and viruses.

4 The hot air generated is naturally combined with your home's ambient air, preserving humidity levels and then blown out through an ultra-silent fan system.

5 A gentle and comfortable heat is then diffused evenly throughout the room from wall to wall and ceiling to floor, without drying the air or reducing the amount of oxygen in the air and with no smoke or odour. The room is heated to the selected temperature within just minutes and you immediately benefit from a healthier air quality.

What advantages does this advanced infrared heater have over most other conventional heaters?

When the engineers finally perfected this revolutionary new type of heater, they kept in mind these 5 key characteristics requested by its users:

1. Maximize energy (and money) savings;
2. Enjoy total comfort while it's operating;
3. Benefit from exceptional construction;
4. Create a compact and easy-to-move heater with a discreet design;
5. Guarantee the safety and security of all family members.

How is it possible to save up to 48% off each one of your quarterly energy bills?

It's simple.

Thanks to this revolutionary new and efficient heat generating system, the Eco Quartz® infrared heater can comfortably and quickly heat a large room in only minutes, no matter where you place it.

Simply lower the temperature on all of the thermostats in your home since the room you're occupying will always be warm and comfortable thanks to the Eco Quartz® infrared heater.

Each Eco Quartz® infrared heater is compact and is easy to quickly move from room to room thanks to its 4 durable easy-roll wheels. It

Hannah Evans, Winchester "I've been published in The Guardian and Good Life earning £400. And now I've got my first book published by Bloomsbury called MOB Rule: Lessons Learned by a Mother of Boys. The Writers Bureau course provided me with structure, stopped my procrastination but most importantly it provided the impetus to try something different."

Kris Roberts, Somerset "When I first saw my words in print it was life changing. Someone else had read my work, believed in it, paid for it, and put it out there for others to see. As more articles made it to press, my confidence grew and I found I wanted to inject some of myself into my writing. At the time of writing this I have received £1,197 for my work."

Turn on TURN OFF

Top telly or time to hit the off switch? Each week we'll print two different views on one TV show...

ITV's Downton Abbey finale was captivating. What about a spin-off set in the Dowager's home with Denker and Spratt?

Neil Sinclair, Tadworth, Surrey

Too many Abbey endings?

Downton* was too sugary by half: any dramatic possibilities were sacrificed for a Disney-style Happy Ever After for every single character.

Mrs Nancie Rutherford, Sevenoaks, Kent

Just kidding

C4's Gogglebox offshoot, Gogglesprogs – showing children as the armchair critics – was genius! The participants, from all over the country, offered lots of witty opinions.

A Brown, Harrogate, North Yorks

The stellar cast were a shore thing

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Murder-mystery was to die for

And Then There Were None* was an amazing, atmospheric Agatha Christie treat. Each episode of BBC1's three-part adaptation kept me on the edge of my seat. I thought I'd guessed who the killer was, but the many twists and turns proved me wrong. It was my favourite festive drama.

Helen Regan, Cardiff

ED: We have had several letters praising this show.

Novel approach

With the usual repeats at Christmas, how refreshing it was that the BBC gave us something completely new in Dickensian. I have long been a fan of Dickens' work and it hasn't disappointed.

Ben Carpenter, Harlow, Essex

ED'S note: Don't miss our interview with Stephen Rea, aka Insp Bucket, on page 18.

Drama had spirit

My husband and I really enjoyed ITV's spooky drama, Harry Price: Ghost Hunter (and he doesn't normally like period shows). We both think there really ought to be a series with Harry (Rafe Spall) and Sarah Grey (Cara Theobald) working together to solve all manner of paranormal mysteries.

Mrs Jean York, via email

Victorian values

I loved BBC1's Sherlock being taken back to its Victorian roots on New Year's Day. Holmes stories are timeless classics which can be tailored for any era.

William Oliver Healey, Telford, Shropshire

David's rich seam

After the Beeb's hugely entertaining The Boy in the Dress last year, Billionaire Boy was another major success for David Walliams. I loved it from beginning to end and Warwick Davis was spot on as the Spud family's exasperated butler.

Jan Stephenson, Burton-on-Trent, Staffs

Retail therapy

The BBC and David Jason have done a wonderful job on Still Open All Hours, even though it hasn't got the genius of Ronnie Barker. The first series did have similar storylines to the original, but the latest one is the best present the Beeb could have given us.

Jack Amer, Gorleston, Norfolk

David's sitcom sequel is top of the shops

MAGIC MOMENTS

Great memories from this week in TV history

2 YEARS AGO

20 January 2014

The nation weeps as Corrie's Hayley takes her own life

It was one of those moments when Coronation Street reminded us why it holds such a cherished place in the nation's heart.

After months of agonising anticipation, Hayley Cropper, her body ravaged by cancer, had decided to end her life.

Hayley (née Harold) and her beloved husband Roy were never a conventional soap couple. Yet, thanks to Julie Hesmondhalgh and David Neilson's tender and nuanced performances, they were certainly one of its most loved.

The end, when it came, was both peaceful and utterly heartbreaking. Roy

Despite Roy's pleas, Hayley opted to die with dignity

At Hayley's funeral, Fizz shared fond memories put Vaughan Williams's The Lark Ascending on the CD player and lay beside Hayley. 'Don't be afraid,' he told her. 'Lying here with you, how could I be?' she replied. 'I wouldn't be anywhere else.'

Roy had tried to talk Hayley out of taking her life, but her mind was made up. She had prepared a lethal cocktail of drugs and he was under strict instructions not to try to stop her. 'I love you, Roy. Always have, always will. I'm so sorry I have to go...'

Moments later, she was dead. As Roy held her in his arms, the camera panned across their bedroom, finally resting on his best shirt, neatly ironed by his ever-practical wife earlier in the day in readiness for her funeral.

Talking to TV Times shortly after filming her final scenes,

Julie told us they had taken an emotional toll. 'It has been hard. There's a real sadness about saying goodbye to this family that I've been part of for so long; sadness about leaving David and also sadness about saying bye-bye to Hayley, whom I love.'

For the millions of us weeping at home, the feeling was mutual.

LIFE AFTER HAYLEY

What Julie did next

Julie Hesmondhalgh has kept herself busy since leaving Corrie. Garlanded at the National Television Awards and British Soap Awards for her moving portrayal of Hayley's last months, she returned to TV in C4 drama Cucumber (below) followed by roles in BBC2 black comedy Inside No. 9 and BBC4's Black Roses: The Killing of Sophie Lancaster. She'll play another woman with terminal cancer in Pulitzer Prize-winning play Wit at Manchester's Royal Exchange Theatre from 21 January, and will be on screen next month in BBC1 drama Happy Valley.

Jools' potty mouth gets him into trouble

Jools Holland landed in hot water after he used the F-word during a live teatime trailer for C4's The Tube. The slip of the tongue resulted in him being suspended for six weeks. In his autobiography Barefaced Lies and Boogie-Woogie Boasts, he recalled writing to TV clean-up campaigner Mary Whitehouse to apologise: 'I had such a charming letter back that I considered joining her association.'

Later, Jools swore not to offend again

Tessa and Frank marry in Love Hurts

Zoë Wanamaker and the late Adam Faith appeared on the cover of TV Times as we looked forward to the wedding of their chalk-and-cheese characters Tessa Piggott and Frank Carver in the BBC1 romantic drama Love Hurts. The ceremony was filmed at the magnificent St Isaac's Cathedral in the historic Russian city of St Petersburg. 'It was a very romantic moment in a glorious setting,' Zoë told us. 'When the priest held golden crowns above our heads in the Russian Orthodox tradition, I held my breath.'

Adam and Zoë went to Russia with love
